

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to an interlabial pad used by being fitted between female labia, specifically an interlabial pad which can be used together with a sanitary napkin, and to a wrapping body in which the interlabial pad is enclosed
5 in a wrapping container for separate wrapping. Provided is an interlabial pad which has a basic function of keeping sanitary property that skins of wearers are not contaminated in wide areas and a sense of safety that stains on underwear can be decreased and, at the same time, can be removed sanitarily.

Provided is an interlabial pad (14) formed by bonding a permeable
10 coating sheet (11) and an impermeable support sheet (12) with an absorbent body (13) for absorbing blood being enclosed therebetween. The pad comprises a pull - up body (18) which projects towards the body front side in the state where the interlabial pad (14) is being fitted in the labia.